

Food and Gratefulness

by Joe Krause, Terry School Superintendent & Principal

If there was a restaurant in town that served an average of 114 lunches a day that'd be a pretty busy and successful business! 114 is a rough average of what Terry School's cooks serve on an average day. Some days are even busier. If I added breakfasts to the meals served it'd be well over 150 meals...each day!

Terry School District is so fortunate to have a wonderful, caring kitchen staff. Did you know they make their own bread and rolls? I guarantee you that students in larger districts don't get fresh breads and homemade cinnamon rolls at their meals.

Trace Adkins sings a song called "You're Gonna Miss This". Sometimes it's the simplest, everyday things, that we overlook. The lovely lunches served in the Bolin School cafeteria may be one of those things today's students look back on fondly and remember how nice it was to have a tasty lunch made for them five days a week. Most of us adults would LOVE to have a deal like that! Terry's cooks even keep a stocked salad bar for our students who want to add some greens to their meals.

This column is simply an acknowledgement of Terry's terrific food service folks and a reminder to all of us to appreciate the simple moments in our lives.
